"It ain't braggin' if it's true."

Four years ago, the class of 2007 entered Attleboro High School as so many had done before us. Like previous classes, we were apprehensive and excited about the commencement of our high school career. Looking back at the people we were in 2003, it goes without saying that we have matured into newer versions of ourselves. We leave the the high school this year with a plethora of knowledge, good friends, a sense of community, and really, really ridiculously good looks. We have been told on more than one occasion that we are the best class in the school; for four years, and on so many levels, we have justified that statement.

As underclassmen in our freshmen and sophomore years of high school, it did not take long to become acclimated with the school and the system that structres it. We were intoduced to our dean, Mr. Downey, who from the day he met us has been unable to cease his endless praise and adoration for us. Ms. Nestlen and Miss Honey (now Mrs. Sawyer) took us under their wings as class advisors, a task for which we should show more appreciation. They guided us through the major events that shaped those first two years, and were instrumental in the events that marked their respective ends- the freshman social and the sophomore gathering.

Our intense school spirit has been an outwardly obvious characteristic from day one, but Junior year we started things off with a bang, defeating the seniors in the spirit rally. Even with our resounding victory, we were still big enough people to console the seniors who teared up at their loss. The bulk of the year was spent being reminded about our futures and the decisions we needed to start making. The prospect of grduation was a welcome one for many, although it still seemed very distant. We became acquainted with the SATs, although most will admit that they overstayed their welcome. We graced the teachers and fellow students with our intelligence, humor, and kind ways day in and day out. As the year came to a close, many of us had our first taste of prom, a very memorable experience. The "Red Carpet" theme permeated the halls of Christina's in Foxboro as we dressed our finest and danced our dirtiest. Most notably, our prom was one of the few that went off without any "incidents." This is due to our being an exceedingly classy class.

Summer came and went, and before we knew it we had once again returned to the un-air conditioned rooms of the high school, this time as seniors. We commented on how big and tough and cool we looked in comparison to the incoming class. We once again proved our valor in the spirit rally, and stood behind the football team as they beat Feehan that same day for the first time in years. Many students spent the fall months laboring over college applications, aware of the looming deadlines ahead. As the acceptances started to trickle back in, we proved to the school and the community something we had already known: we are wicked smart! The seniors roaming the halls this year can be found next year on the campuses of the best schools in the country.

This year, just like the three that preceded it, will come to an end in June. Only this time, as we leave with diplomas in our hands, we will not be returning next fall. We will take with us the experiences that molded us into the people we are today, and go forth into a life that is whatever we make it. Our presence at Attleboro was profoundly felt, and I believe that we as individuals will have just as strong an impact wherever we go in life. I hope that as you cross the football field June 10th, you never forget what it is that made us the best class in the school...arguably the best class ever.

I wish all of you the best of luck in your futures, wherever they may take you!

Dedication

Mr. Walton

This year, the Class of 2007 dedicates the yearbook to a man who has always gone above and beyond what is expected of a teacher. Whether enlightening us with his knowledge of rap music or enriching our lives through learning about English language, Mr. Walton's primary goal is furthering our education. His sense of humor and his endless encouragement of students has earned him our respect and admiration. Room 318B is always open, as many of us know, and it has become a place to go for extra help, life advice, or just good conversation. Mr. Walton has been an influential individual over the course of our four years at Attleboro High School, and for that we are forever grateful. Thanks, D. Dubs. Mad Love.

To: The Best Class Advisors Ever!

Dear Ms. Nestlen and Mrs. (Honey) Sawyer,

Over the past four years here at Attleboro High School, we have seen people come and go, administrative changes, and a NEASC inspection. Under your supervision and guidance our class has had some of the most memorable dances, brought back powder puff football, topped the spirit rally, and hosted the first Battle of the Bands.

Mrs. Sawyer, it was hard to remember your name after you married, but it was never difficult to accomplish something with you as our advisor. From your advice, prom ideas, and creative ticket designs (they are the best!), to bringing your newborn son Bobby in for some laughs, your help has been very much appreciated. You have always tried to make what we do better.

Ms. Nestlen, you've continued to help our class in many ways. With your planning, your influence as student council advisor, and your desk event calendar, you have kept our class organized and looking ahead. You gave us reality checks, helping us to find our limits and then to surpass them.

With your care and encouragement the two of you have helped many of us succeed. You have both made our time here at the high school fun and productive. You've given us all a laugh and yet kept us on task. We would like to thank you for all you have done for us.

Sincerely Your Class,
The Class of 2007
